This is San Francisco's crookedest street.

Vermont St. holds the dubious and relatively unknown distinction of being the city's (and perhaps the nation's) crookedest street because of its steeper grade and tighter turning radius between each switchback than its famed-sister to the north, Lombard Street. Sure, there are more switchbacks (curves) on Lombard St. (eight) than on Vermont St. (seven), but if you're using "crooked" in its literal sense, the latter is the one to go with.

It's a one-way street too, so the only way to go is down.

C - Yerba Buena Island Tunnel

Background: Yerba Buena Island is a small chunk of land resting in the San Francisco Bay, between Oakland and San Francisco. A cantilevered bridge flanks this five-lane tunnel on one side, with a double suspension bridge on the other.

Why It's Unique: With a 76-foot diameter, Yerba Buena Island Tunnel is the world's widest single-bore tunnel, an impressive feat considering it opened in November of 1936. Hashash speculates that adding the tunnel was the most cost-effective solution to allowing a passage through the island, as opposed to just building one enormous bridge.

Golden Gate Bridge N 37.827141°, W 122.47879° is a suspension bridge spanning the Golden Gate, the strait between San Francisco and Marin County to the north. The masterwork of architect Joseph B. Strauss, whose statue graces the southern observation deck, the bridge took seven years to build, and was completed in 1937. The Golden Gate Bridge was the longest suspension bridge span in the world when it was completed, and has become one of the most popular tourist attractions in San Francisco and California. Since its completion, the span length has been surpassed by eight other bridges. The famous red-orange color of the bridge was specifically chosen to make the bridge more easily visible through the thick fog that frequently shrouds the bridge.

Tolls can be paid online up to 48 hrs after crossing

D - Grace Cathedral Labyrinth, San Francisco N 37.792101°, W 122.413346° show the varied forms that mazes and labyrinths can take. Rather than taking organic forms in plants or trees, these architecturally designed stone and tile labyrinths – both an indoor and outdoor labyrinth are located at the cathedral – offer an inspiring chance for spiritual contemplation in the midst of the bustling city.

Grace Cathedral has two labyrinths. The outdoor labyrinth, to the right of the cathedral doors, is always open.

The indoor labyrinth is open when the cathedral is open: normally 8 a.m. - 6 p.m. Monday - Saturday and 8 a.m. - 7 p.m. on Sunday, when no special events or services are being held. On cathedral holidays, hours are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

E - Lombard Street, San Francisco - the crookedest streets in the world *N 37.802028°, W 122.419626°

Located between Hyde and Leavenworth streets in San Francisco, Lombard Street is famous for being the crookedest street in the world. The one-block portion of Lombard Street that contains eight hairpin turns was created to reduce the hill's natural steep slope. The speed limit in this section is a mere 5 mph (8 km/h).

G - Lands End Labyrinth, N 37.788017°, W 122.505832°

Lands End is a park in San Francisco within the Golden Gate National Recreation Area. It is a rocky and windswept shoreline at the mouth of the Golden Gate, situated between the Sutro District and Lincoln Park and abutting Fort Miley Military Reservation. A memorial to the USS San Francisco stands in the park. Numerous hiking trails follow the former railbeds of the Ferries and Cliff House Railway along the cliffs and also down to the shore.

The most-traveled trail in Lands End is the Coastal Trail, a section of the California Coastal Trail that follows the railbed of the old Cliff House Railway. This trail is handicap-accessible until the Mile Rock Overlook, and bike accessible until the Eagles Point steps. A spur trail takes users to Mile Rock Point and Mile Rock Beach, which offer views of the Golden Gate.

Additionally, Lands End contains the ruins of the Sutro Baths. Other historic sites include numerous shipwrecks, which are visible at low tides from the Coastal Trail and Mile Rock.

A visitor center, Lands End Lookout, opened on April 28, 2012.

SAN FRANCISCO, California

Alcatraz Island, part of Golden Gate National Recreation Area

Cable cars, Chinatown, and the Golden Gate Bridge are just a few of the symbols by which the world recognizes this, the most romantic of American cities. Restaurants and souvenir shops swarm the waterfront at places like The Cannery and Fisherman's Wharf. Tours of Alcatraz Island show visitors life at the former prison, which lies within earshot of the city. For a bit of quiet time, sit and sip at the Japanese Tea Garden, one of many pleasures found within enormous Golden Gate Park. Silver dollar pancakes at the famous 65-year-old Sears Fine Foods restaurant satisfy hungry breakfast patrons. Tax: 14% hotel, 8.75% sales. For local weather, call (831) 656-1725.
